THIRD SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME
January 22, 2017

Describing the humble beginning of the public ministry of Jesus, today's Scripture readings teach us that Christ has brought us from darkness of sin into the Light by calling us to repentance and the acceptance of God's role.

Light and darkness

Terry Anderson, a journalist for the Associated Press, was seized and held hostage in Lebanon for seven years; blindfolded almost all of that time, Anderson described his experience in this way, "Deepest darkness, fumbling, uncertainties are frightening. More frightening is the darkness of the mind, when outside light makes no impression and inner lights go dim..."

In November of 1965, a power failure plunged seven northeastern U.S. states and Ontario, Canada, into a darkness which lasted for more than thirteen hours. About thirty million people living in eighty thousand square miles of territory were afflicted. In 1977, another, less severe, power failure darkened New York City for fifty-two minutes. Losses due to accidents and looting were in excess of one billion dollars. In the Holy Scriptures, light and darkness serve as symbols for good and evil. In today's first reading and in the Gospel, Jesus is presented as the One sent to remove the darkness of sin from the world. Through Isaiah, God promises that His people will see an end to the darkness of oppression and separation. Today's Gospel shows us how the prophecy of Isaiah was fulfilled in Jesus.

One Weapon

Feast of the Conversion of St. Paul

St. Paul has but one weapon; the message of Christ and the gift of his entire life for Christ and for others. It is precisely this readiness to lay him open, personally, to be consumed for the sake of the Gospel, to make himself all things to all people, unstintingly, that gives him credibility and builds up the Church.
